What We are Doing in a Good Way: A Cultural Competency Framework Model

Thank you to the District of Timiskaming Social Services Administration Board for compiling these resources.

What we are doing in a Good Way: Indigenous Cultural-Linguistic Framework is a resource that facilitates Indigenous cultural competency among service providers, educators, policy makers, planners and community leaders.

Summary of the Indigenous Cultural-Linguistic Competency Framework (2-pager)

Indigenous Cultural-Linguistic Framework: Implementation Planning Guide details a comprehensive range of actions to address the need for significant change at multiple levels from governance to management and the frontlines, through a range of interdependent activities. It is a blueprint for change in ongoing cycles of planning, operationalizing, evaluation, and continuous improvement.

Indigenous Cultural-Linguistic Framework: Implementation Tool Kit provides practical resources to help plan and carry out activities. These tools are designed to facilitate attitudinal and practice change within a larger context of organizational and systems changes.

Reclaiming Connections: Understanding Residential School Trauma Among Aboriginal People This manual was created as a learning and reference tool for groups and organizations providing services to Aboriginal people. Its focus is trauma recovery for Survivors of residential school abuse, as well as for their descendants who suffer the intergenerational impacts. It is designed to serve two purposes. First, it provides a culture-based approach to trauma recovery in the context of residential school abuse for frontline workers. Secondly, it is an educational tool to raise awareness of Aboriginal culture and history in Canada.

Settlers Info Project aims to facilitate a paradigm shift in Canada for the mutual benefit of First Nations people and for Settlers by providing all the information Settlers need to fully understand, respect, value and love First Nations people in Canada.
